Homecoming

Craig's Brother

In two, alone he'll forget the time
Burn money to ashes, be drunken with wine
A fool, not knowing his left from right
He's losing direction his home within sight
(Staggered in with nowhere to begin)I've left you again now I'm back to amend
No word that I say will be true
I'm fine on my own except for I'm all alone
I'm just incomplete without youUndo the bondage of faith that ties
Unsevered connections just holding too tight
End pretending thoughts stop sending surface his new home
Won't think to long he's incomplete without you (Staring over the shoulder to sin)I've left you again now I'm back to amend
No word that I say will be true
I'm fine on my own except for I'm all alone
I'm just incomplete without youAway he's walking to the sun
Blinded in light of what he's done
And echoed voices burning
He's trying hard to clear his mind
But digging deeper he'll only find
Buried treasure forgotten faceHere I am on my own now coming home
I'm fine on my own except for I'm all alone
I'm just incomplete without you

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/