

Shades of Gray

Juicehead

These scars remind me where I've been I've Sinned I've pleaded guilty
I know I know
There is many shades of grey
The past is past a facts a fact I wont be Chastised for it
I know I know
That some times in life you pay

And no matter what the skeptics say
people can change
You can forgive or you can life with regret
Its your decision to make
Just understand the path is never so straight
We all make mistakes
Just got to face them at the end of the day

Pick up the fallen pieces don't write your
Finals thesis
There's still time to rectify your ways
This case is always pending odd ends and new beginnings
You'll never see them if you look away
The pictures never black and white
So many shades of wrong and right
Too many shadows dim the lights

Desperation comes and goes
The emptiness is standard
I know I know
I helped to build these walls
My vices get me into binds not not blind to my afflictions and
I know I know
That even angels fall

And no matter what the skeptics say
people can change
You can forgive or you can life with regret
Its your decision to make
Just understand the path is never so straight

We all make mistakes
Just got to face them at the end of the day

Pick up the fallen pieces don't write your
Finals thesis

There's still time to rectify your ways
This case is always pending odd ends and new beginnings
You'll never see them if you look away

No I don't need your good advice there's is no right answer in the end
Life's a fucking compromise
No right answer in the end
These questions will resolve in time
No right answer in the end
We wander blind to our demise
Connecting pieces as we can

The pictures never black and white
So many shades of wrong and right
To many shadows dim the lights

Lyrics submitted by kevin reynolds.

Lyrics provided by <https://damnllyrics.com/>