Sound the Alarm

Anacrusis

Lie to me honestly
I hear, but still, I don't see
Just where the actions meet the words
You just sound the alarmRacing pulse and boiling blood
At fever pitch
Another finger pointing mob
With stones to throwBut if it truly mattered
And if you truly cared
It would be altogether different
Let the sirens scream
But leave me alone to decide
And leave me to what I might findStarving to understand
You swallowed the lies
Eager to spit them out
To feed the masses
And the guilt they hideAnswer me honestly
No more false transparencies
Just where does motive meet concern?
You just sound the alarmSpreading fear, to bury trust
To distract
Until, lost and scared
Frustration forces blameStarving to understand
You swallowed the lies
Eager to spit them out
To feed the masses
And the guilt they hideAnswer me honestly
No more false transparencies
Just where does motive meet concern?
You just sound the alarmSpreading fear to bury trust
To distract
Until, lost and scared
Frustration forces blameSound the alarm
Sound the alarm
Sound the alarm
Sound the alarmStarving to understand
You swallowed the lies
Choking to spit them out
To rid this guilt inside
