Unfazed

The Waiting

I don't think You had in mind
You set my city on a hill
For it's walls to be built up to keep the light in Brick on brick I'm building still, yeahBut the moon still shines
The stars seem brighter
I see You through the haze
So I remain unfazedI don't think You were intending
When You pitched this tent You call Your home
For it to be a place always in need of mending
With a bed as cold as stoneBut the moon still shines
The stars seem brighter
I see You through the haze
So I remain unfazedMy roof caved in, the weight of unbelief and
My eyes half closed, my vision getting weak
And still I see You, I know You'll never fade
So I am not afraidYa the moon still shines
The stars seem brighter
I see You through the haze
So I remain unfazed
Yeah, I remain unfazed, unfazed
So I remain unfazedUnfazed, unfazed
