

Near Earth Orbit

Mimes On Rollercoasters

So long, when you realize that your dreams won't come true.
So long, when you finally notice what life's given you.

As a boy, I once thought I'd set the whole world on fire.
A lifetime has gone astray in a cruel, cruel world.

So long, drifting in an orbit out here on my own.
So long, staring down the muzzle of a loaded gun.

My life has passed me by in the blink of an eye.
The years have filtered out truths from all of the lies.

This doesn't seem to be working, maybe I should take some more.
I don't even feel sleepy.
What good is this stuff, what good is this stuff, what good is this stuff?
I'm so tired. Where did you go? I can't see you.
Sigh.
