Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

Serenade me with rocks, love
No lullabyes through the locks, love
I locked myself in with the band,
But the music's never loud enoughDecibels in the belfry,
Hey, what the hell, if it helps me
I put a whip to the kick-drum,
But the music's never loud enoughSo you're gonna have to show me how that dance is done;
The one where somebody leaves someoneMy orchestra is gigantic
This thing could sink the Titanic
And the string section's screaming like horses in a barn burning upHe plays piano with fistfuls of broken Belvedere crystal and he's trying to forget you
But the music's never loud enoughSo you're gonna have to show me how that dance is done;
The one where somebody leaves someoneHe's impaling the front row,
Fighting fire with arrows
And he'll act like he forgot you
But the music's never loud enoughSo you're gonna have to show me how that dance is done;
The one where somebody leaves someone
