What If

School Boy Humor

Every day I try to see the closeness that you promised me that fades away, fades away
Every night I try to dream of what you wanted me to be in your life, in your life
Every dawn of light that wakes you up will remind you of my touch, that youâ€™ll miss so much

What if die tomorrow, would you miss me here?
And what if I cry tomorrow, would you shed your tears?

Every time you think about the things you said remind yourself how Iâ€™m gone
I hope you take the signs â€œOf listen learnâ€• tomorrow isnâ€™t promised, nothingâ€™s promised
Every hour of every day that Iâ€™m by, youâ€™ll cry for me, youâ€™ll cry for me

What if die tomorrow, would you miss me here?
And what if I cry tomorrow, would you shed your tears?

A story has just been told that hasnâ€™t happen yet
Just a tragic foreshadowing of what could happen to you
Think before you speak, it could be the last time
The last time, the last time

What if die tomorrow, would you miss me here?
And what if I cry tomorrow, would you shed your tears?

A story has just been told that hasnâ€™t happen yet
Just a tragic foreshadowing of what could happen

Lyrics submitted by Jamie~chu.

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/