

Dollar Sign

Car Party

You're just a shade of the person who'd pick me up.
You used to be there when the world got tough.
But now you're clinging to a dream and you're losing time.
So save your damn breath and I won't waste mine.

And every part part part of you that's inside me
is what you're taking away each and every day.

Can't deny the shine of a dollar sign
You know better
the truth the lies the family you left behind
We need shelter

And when you're old, we'll live in different houses.
You won't have anyone to watch your back.
You'll see the bills pile up and you'll feel so stuck.
And wish that you could change the past.

And every part part part of you that's inside me
is what you're taking away each and every day.

Make a fake smile, and tell me you mean it.
Then grit your teeth at the world when we Try to make you right, we'll go just another night
But I'm way too tired for this to be my life.

Lyrics submitted by Ashley Miller.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnlyrics.com/>