

Silence (Pretending's So Comfortable)

As It Is

Four walls and a door
We used to call home
The rest of our lives but not enough time till we're both alone
    i try to steady my hands
    You hurt to know why
    I open my mouth and just trip over sounds
        But my eyes speak goodbye
The silence tells us all we need to knowI breathe nervous and slow
    Well your desperate for air
    My eyes sink to the floor
    Yours go bounce down the stair
    In my tears you know I meant all I said
As every elegant word I said sinks in againThe silence tells us all we need to know (need to know)
    Pretending's so comfortable
But I have to go for the last timeYou challenge all that I think Something is what made me it
        I rephrase and repeat
        Leaving nothing unsaid
    Your hysterics aren't the last words you'd hear
        As I stand to the your moment
Your four walls full of fearThe silence tells us all we need to know (need to know)
    Pretending's so comfortable
But I have to go for the last timeWe won't talk at all, we'll just wonder
    We won't talk at all, we'll just wonder
    We won't talk at all, we'll just wonder
    We won't talk at all, we won't talk at all
    We won't just talk at all, we'll just wonder what we still swallow when we shouldn't
We won't just talk at all, we'll just wonder what we still swallow when we shouldn'tThe silence tells us all we need to know (need to know)
    Pretending's so comfortable
    But I have to go for the last time
The silence tells us all we need to know (need to know)
    Pretending's so comfortable
        But I had to go
