EZ.2.B. Anti

H2O

I thought this was suppose to be about open minds and unity
Not alienation, separation, who is more pc
You people pointing fingers, judging others need to realize
To each their own, get off your soapbox thrown
Who are you to criticize?And it's so easy to be anti, close your mind up tight
And you walk around the world thinking everything you know is right
It's so easy just to protest, so hard to fucking give
No one person has the answers, there's no one way to liveNobody's better than no one else, straight edge or what they eat
Stand up for what you think is right, you don't have to be elite
Think of all you're missing when you're on that narrow road
Do you really believe or is it just what you have been toldAnd it's so easy to be anti, close your mind up tight
And you walk around the world thinking everything you know is right
It's so easy just to protest, so hard to fucking give
No one person has the answers, there's no one way to liveStand up for what you think is right, but who are you to criticize
Your narrow mind has left you in a moral state of imaginary grace
Your cause has lost it's taste and now you're gone
Just like that you're gone, now you're never coming backAnd it's so easy to be anti, close your mind up tight
And you walk around the world thinking everything you know is right
No one person has the answers, there's no one way to live
