Different Now

The Classic Crime

The sunset through the blinds reminds me of the time we met
you were like a ray of sunlight penetrating my apartment as we walked down by the water I remember what you said You said, "We had so much in common." You didn't see it comingOh I was as surprised to find the love inside your eyes as you were, to see mine
And our friends all laughed and we were warned
It was the calm before the storm, that comes like it always does, like it always doesLove of mine, Oh my, how we have grown
We're different now
Don't ever want to go back to being alone
It's different now
And I wouldn't change a thingI recall the times we spent down by the coffee shop
We would fight and you would cry, because in those days I lied a lot Tried to protect you from the truth, I had to learn that never worked
I couldn't anything from you, couldn't bare to see it hurt youOh I was so surprised to find forgiveness in your eyes undeserved. But love is blind
So we shared our hearts as we drove home
It was the calm before the storm, that comes
Like it always doesLove of mine, Oh my, how we have grown
We're different now
Don't ever want to go back to being alone
It's different now
And I wouldn't change a thingAfter all the mistakes
Different now
It seems our love never brakes
Different now
And I wouldn't change a thingLove of mine, Oh my, how we have grown
We're different now
Don't ever want to go back to being alone
It's different now
And I wouldn't change, I wouldn't change a thingThe sunset through the blinds reminds me of the time we met
you were like a ray of sunlight penetrating my apartment

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/