

Milonga Too

Jack Bruce

Each single day has just enough cruelty within
To make them perfect and right
Each single day has just enough dark, deep within
To make it perfect and lightUp against the sky, stars crawl against the night
Each one trying to claw their way out
But each single day has just enough dark
To make me really want, want to stayEach single day has just enough meanness inside
To make it perfect and calm
Each breathing day has just enough coldness within
To make it perfect and warmUp against the night, moon's pressed against the sky
Trying to force its way out, out again
But each breathing day has just enough hurt
To make me stay
