Rubicon

Milburn

We must be shrewd or stupid,
One of the two,
Mistakes are too important,
For us to lose,
But he would have broke your heart,
But she would have lead me down the garden,
They would always leave,
Early in the morning,
No final kiss,
No final warning,Just as were friends today,
Tomorrow well be lovers,
Never to be the same no more, no more,
Weve crossed the Rubicon,
And we cant turn our heels,
So its onto the breach,
Oh well have to teach ourselves, my love,And Ill be telling tales,
If I, claim to be sure,
That this will last forever,
Just look at the way it has gone before,
But he would have broke your heart,
And she would have taken me for granted,
They would always leave early in the morning,
No final kiss,
No final warning,
