

Bury, Bury, Bury Another

Rilo Kiley

We had jobs then

We were happy

'Cause we had jobs

That we liked

Now it's just hurry, hurry, hurry us up

We got to get it done tonight

And the roads that you built

Won't get us there fast enough

And the shadows on the hills

They don't shade us from the beating-downs

Maybe distance might wash away your loved ones

That left you all at once, just because

It was bury, bury, bury another

You'd wash your feet as you make your way up

To some overly quiet place

You never looked hard enough

For your own last name or someone you liked at all

To keep you standing there with flowers

(music)

We had love then

We had attachments

and we had carelessness on our side

Now all the afternoons between romances keep us hanging on

We wish our ex was by our side

And the loves that you had

They didn't please you enough

Now your face is in your hands

You wonder if anyone ever will, ever will, ever will...
