Home

Ryan Sheridan

The sun goes down
And the place that feels unknown
And the darkest night
Becomes a light for everyone
I'd take my time
Try to figure out what's wrong
Take a breath
All I think about is home

No one said it was easy, all alone
Deep in our heart where it seems
Chasing dreams
Running miles from where you're from
To lift your feet off the ground

Might take a trip
Down a road you don't want to go
I tried and fell
At a chance that's come and gone
When you're on your knees
And there's nowhere else as low
Take a breath
And try to think about home

No one said it was easy, all alone.
Deep in our heart where it seems
Chasing dreams
Running miles from where you're from
To lift your feet off the ground

Fly too high
And the sun will burn your wings
It's all I know
Fly too high
Burn your wings
