Day I Left Home

The Hidden Cameras

I burned everything I own, left it in a pile smoldering
Took about on foot out into the wood like an animal
Hap'd upon a tree, slept there underneath the birds and planes
Woke up to find that I was aloneTook a man's ride with an eagle eye I was careless
Rolling down the road, in from the cold I was tripping
He took me to his lair said we should be married with a grin
I refuse to make amends
Refuse to wallow anymore
So I telephoned my friend to take the upper hand for the first time
Down on knees digging out the weeds of all the years
I reserve the right to speak
Reserve my right to let it all out
One day you'll see that I'm gone
