

The Moon and Me

Tom Baxter

Sometimes when I wake at night,
I lose myself a while....
And I pray to the moon despairingly, comfort me, please comfort me
For sometimes, my smile won't smile,
and my laugh won't laugh
And my heart grows cold and lonely, Open like a book, my heart, it reads broken sentences,
And for pages you turn and the chapters you read,
It's though my story will never seem to end,
For sometimes my gears wont change and my clutch gets stuck and my wheels wont turn on empty So if at night you hear a voice, it may be the moon and me, or if at times you lose your light then ask the moon to shine on you!
Join the moon and me
The moon and me... And though the world is a cruel cruel place at times they say a mans not meant to shed a single tear ...
Oh well if you like me, simply disagree
Then when the day lays down to sleep, creep beneath the moon with me
For sometimes, my smile won't smile
And my laugh won't laugh
And my heart grows cold and lonely
