

I'm Just A Vagabond Lover

Billy May and His Orchestra

Just a vagabond lover with a sweet serenade,
just a vagabond lover to a Romany maid.
Beneath your window, where moonbeams lie,
My heart is bleeding, love me tonight!

Though I'm only a rover and our ways lie apart,
We are meant for each other, you have stolen my heart!
But the open road will call when the dawn begins to shine;
just a vagabond lover, for tonight you are mine!

My heart to you I'm bringing,
The words I'm singing come from my heart,
So let my arms enfold you,
For with the dawn we two must part!

Though I'm only a rover and our ways lie apart,
We are meant for each other, you have stolen my heart!
But the open road will call when the dawn begins to shine;
just a vagabond lover, for tonight you are mine!
