Damien

Savatage

In this city of raw emotion
What's this message you bring to me?
In my world of blind devotion
You were there but I could never seeDamien, is your heart harder?
What's inside your head?
Is the dark your father?
Have all your years been bled?From my world, I have watched and wondered
Safely here behind these walls
And your tears, could they mean nothing?
If from this distance no one sees them fallDamien, is your heart harder?
What's inside your head?
Is the dark your father?
Have all your years been bled?Sometimes late at night, when I'm there in bed
I lie there wondering, where do you lay your head?
And do you say your prayers anymore?
And do you say your prayers?Damien, is your heart harder?
Do you still feel pain?
Does the night go farther
When you're sleeping in the rain?In the dark I have heard a calling
Broken wings that beg to fly
Is there time or is it too late?
Is the cut flower no longer alive?Damien, is your heart harder?
Do you still feel pain?
Does the night go farther
When you're sleeping in the rain?
Damien, Damien, yeah Damien, oh Damien
