The Body

Sister Charmaine

Come on now stop staring at the ceiling
Your last daydream is slowly unreeling Won't you come out tonight, like I know you want to
'cuz the city's alive and even though it haunts you, I want you To tell me again what the body's for
'cuz I can't feel it anymore
I want to hurt like it did before
We shouldn't sin
Tell me again what the body's for

'cuz I can't feel it anymore
I lost mine and I need yours,
It's only skin, we could swim
You try so hard to keep it together, and you look so hard in fishnets and leather
But I know who you are, you are just a lost saint
And if we go too far, there'll be heaven to pay and what a price?
I can't feel it anymore, tell me again what the body's for
I can't feel it anymore, tell me again it's only skin, we should swim

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/