

Seasons To Cycles

10 Years

How small do you want me to be?
Weighed in the balance left lonely So much can be said through silence
As hard as it seems
All that we need is to close to be seen Our lives
You build your walls for me to climb
A billion walls for me to climb
You build your walls for me to climb Travels the very nature we live in Seasons to cycles children to men Misdread and misread, company or companion
With all of our hearts we follow our dreams
Slightly out of reach Our lives
You build your walls for me to climb
A billion walls for me to climb
You build your walls for me to climb Our lives
You build your walls for me to climb
A billion walls for me to climb
You build your walls for me to climb
