The Things I Said Tonight

Toby Bourke

Another night is dying

And the car that drives us home

A seasoned venue for your crying

Another block I'll be alone

I find you beautiful but frightening

I know you little but the best

And your intentions are like lightningÂ

You strike one place and leave the rest

When this game we played so many times

Leaves us lying here for dead

I would wake and curse my blackened soleÂ

For the things I said tonight

I've seen you grow in oh so many ways

But never was there such a tree

That grew so tall with such committment

That grew at all in front of me

You come from meadows black as night

Into my life to light the way

There's no reason for the things you do

There's no excuse for what I say

When the musics shut behind us

There's only solitude ahead

I would stand and fight the very GodsÂ

For the things I said tonight

Never was there such a simple faceÂ

That bought such pleasure all around

You bring relief to the most hardened drunk When he looks up from the ground

You come from meadows black as night

Into my life to light the way

And there's no reason for the things you doÂ

And there's no excuse for what I say

When we've turned and said goodbye to all and made our separate ways to bed

I would drink the best man sober

For the things I said tonight

When this game we played so many times

Leaves us lying here for dead

I would wake and curse my blackened soulÂ

For the things I said tonight

For the things I said tonight.
