

You Were Right About Everything

Erin McKeown

You were never broken by ordinary things
You kept holding out for the big mistake
I was fragile, too scared and delicate
You kept trying, I'm the one that quit
Worn out by the baggage that we bring
You were right about everything There were times your age began to show
You were never more dangerous to know
You passed me running, you caught me standing still You'd do it all again all for the thrill
I was raised you get out before you sink
You were brave about everything
Nostalgia sweet, hindsight so dear
Objects now are smaller than they appeared
The birds of summer, in winter disappear
In spring return, new life, new years
Here I am, humble on my knees
Come back to life, come back to everything
Come back to life, come back to everything
Oh, you were right about everything
Oh, you were right about everything
Oh, you were right about everything
