

Goodbye In Gasoline (Techno Remix)

Less Than Jake

My lungs are aching
From the cold from being outside.
And the windows in my car
Have started to fog up.
And it's colder then I remember it ever being in Florida. My stomach's burning
And the stereo in this car is screaming so loud.
It's 3 in the morning
I'm just starting to wake up.
And it's darker then I remember it ever being in Florida. The saddest song always plays
On the radio on the worst days,
So I'm saying goodbye in gasoline.
It's the only way I know My head in spinning
And this engine is humming and clicking in time.
To the pounding in my head
And this heart on my sleeve
And it's quieter then I remember.
And it can go on forever. Do you know how many times
How many times I've counted the signs of State lines and roads I've known.
I know, this time, feels like goodbye. My lungs are aching
From the cold from stading outside.
And it's no surprise that we're fucked up.
But you're colder then I remember you ever being in Florida.

Songwriters

GAMBLE, KENNY / HUFF, LEON Published by

Lyrics Â© Warner/Chappell Music, Inc. Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>