

Rosy Coloured Glasses

Sabrina Starke

We grow up believing in a better world
Where we're free to be ourselves not like nobody else
Oh the innocent of a child the beauty of human life
But this dream we once hold dear is now controlled by fear
Start a riot start a war. Dying while we need of love & miracles
A space where we believe
When no religion can heal. The challenges we face
At a point of no return. Will things ever fall into placeThrough rosy colored glasses. I see the world in all its glory today
No more misery or pains
Through rosy colored glasses where all the hurt just fades away
And I see a beautiful picture that will brighten up my day
Change is constant I agree but what's the meaning of
So much useless suffering. When all we want is love
Fathers cry and mothers weep. Little boys put down to sleep Praying hoping that one day we can see the gift in painThrough rosy colored glasses. I see the world in all its
glory today
No more misery or pains
Through rosy colored glasses where all the hurt just fades away
And I see a beautiful picture that will brighten up my dayImagine love everywhere
Close my eyes and I'm there
A step away for peace & change
Escaping life just for one day
Through rosy colored glasses. I see the world in all of its glory
No more misery or pains
Through rosy colored glasses where it fades away
And I see a beautiful picture that will brighten up my day
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://damlyrics.com/>