Just a Little Girl

Trading Yesterday

You never cared to hear the other side
So why would you care to keep this thing alive?
You paint me into the memory of all your pain
But I will not be drawn into the past againCause all of this is all that I can take
And you could never understand the demons that I face
So go ahead and bat your eyes and lie right to the world
For with everything you are, you're just a little girlI never meant for you to feel this way
But Decembers were never meant to be our graves
It's not a question of who is wrong and what is right
But time can not heal what you will never recognizeCause all of this is all that I can take
And you could never understand the demons that I face
So go ahead and bat your eyes and lie right to the world
For with everything you are, you're just a little girlSo go ahead and cry, go ahead believe that you were right
To keep away the dark
To help you sleep tonight
Go on and decide
Who is wrong, what is right
Cause you know insideCause all of this is all that I can take
And you could never understand the demons that I face
So go ahead and bat your eyes and lie right to the world
For with everything you are Cause all of this is all that I can take
And you could never understand the demons that I face
So go ahead and bat your eyes and lie right to the world
For with everything you are, you're just a little girl.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/