Comin' Home

ZO2

And you've come all this way to find you
How many miles did your past get in the way?
At every turn and any path that you would come to There's a crossroad you'd have to face

And your world's seen better days
Now you want to make a return
Before you crash and burn
Deep inside of you
It tells you what to do

It's been a long time now you're comin' home
Won't you come home you wanna come home
Oh yeah
It's been a long time now you're comin' home
Taking a stand cause it's all in your hands
The fear to disappear has led you back to here

Your story grows as the pages of your life turn
But you didn't know all the lines of uncertainty
You're in the throws of wondering what to do
Start travelin' on your way home

And your world will see better days
If you want to make a return
Before you crash and burn
Deep inside of you
It tells you what to do

You fear to disappear
Tryin' to find your way, no it's never too late
Just come on come home

You've looked inside and seen the error of your ways
Don't compromise all the progress that you've made
You will find yourself oh
And that'll lead you back home
Ooh and you'll never be alone
In time you'll return and live with what you learn
The road you knew so well leaves so much left to tell

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/