Waves

Bahamas

And I held the breath inside my lungs for days
And I saw myself as one of many waves
And when I knew I'd become the ocean's slave
I just stayedAnd we carried far with all the waters past
Of the waves I was not first I was not last
And if we saw a boat afloat we took the mast
So fastThere's a part of it, that I'll miss
At the heart of it, your cold kiss
From the start of it, I know this
There's a part of itAnd before too long the waves grew out of hand
And they worked to keep the sea at their command
And the only thing they feared it seemed the sand
And dry landThere's a part of it, that I'll miss
At the heart of it, your cold kiss
From the start of it, I know this
Oh there's a part of itFrom the water there was born a bright blue roar
As it rolled and formed and calmed the ocean's floor
And it finally rose and broke upon the shore
No moreThere's a part of it, that I'll miss
At the heart of it, your cold kiss
From the start of it, I know this
Oh there's a part of it, I know thisThere's a part of it, that I'll miss
At the heart of it, your cold kiss
From the start of it, I know this
Oh there's a part of it
Oh there's a part of it
