The Redwalls

Holding up the bank in Belgrade
She lost her mind
Between the battle lines
And the telephone ringsA bell rung out
As they talk about
Sixteen kids gone in a school yard
The papers read, she shakes her head
And I saidIn the darkest night

Come the darkest days

In the worst of waysClose that town for good, the plagues here

The skin from beneath

All the way to the mouths they feedThen they're filtered clear

The boys will try

And the judge decidesGet out while you can, she tells me

You're wasting time

That's fineIn the darkest night

Come the darkest days

In the worst of waysAll right, nowFrom the silent cry

To the naked eye

She waves goodbyeHolding up the bank in Belgrade

I played a tune

When, how, did it happen soon, she said

Now we find a way to make it downThe place smokes and the palace burns

And the world keeps turning around

And around, yeah

Around and it's bringing me downIn the darkest night

Come the darkest days

And the last bell rings out
