Same Damn Life

Seether

Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

Come smoke a cigarette and let your hair down
Then pray for the rain to go away
I'm trying to forget I let us both down
Then pray for the sun to come againI never thought I could feel so small
But you're the one that can't live without attention
I never thought I would lose this all
But you're the one who needs the fucking interventionNow I'm reliving my whole damn life
And it's a shame that I can't remember
And now I'm living the same damn lie
It's a shame, but nothing's foreverWith every new regret I start to wear down
Then pray for the pain to go away
I need an amulet, I need a new sound
I know everything remains the sameI never thought I could feel so small
I'm the one who will suffer this detention
I never thought I would lose this all
But I accept this is my new educationNow I'm reliving my whole damn life
And it's a shame that I can't remember
And now I'm living the same damn lie
It's a shame, but nothing's foreverNow I'm reliving my whole damn life
And it's a shame that I can't remember
And now I'm living the same damn lie
It's a shame, but nothing's forever
