

The Wine We Drink

Drew Holcomb & The Neighbors

I have a tendency to laugh at all the wrong moments.
Sometimes I forget the words to my own song.
I'm not the silent type or an exit sign or a yellow brick road.
You are the one thing that I know.

It's in the wine we drink, dirty dishes in the kitchen sink,
and the lights go out til the sun comes up; we are not alone.
It's in the miles we drive, never having to say goodbye
to the things we tell each other without saying a word.
You are the one thing that I know.

There's a beauty that we never know what the future holds.
Beneath the surface we are the calm, we are the storm.
I'm not sunset or a hurricane or a Vincent Van Gogh.
You are the one thing that I know.

It's in the wine we drink, dirty dishes in the kitchen sink,
and the lights go out til the sun comes up; we are not alone.
It's in the miles we drive, never having to say goodbye
to the things we tell each other without saying a word.
You are the one thing that I know.

It's in the wine we drink, dirty dishes in the kitchen sink,
and the lights to out til the sun comes up; we are not alone.
You are the one thing that I know.

---

Lyrics submitted by Binho Cabral.

Lyrics provided by <https://damnlyrics.com/>