Pray for Me

Love Equals Death

Standing still between these walls
Holding on to all that matters is now lost
I try to wipe these tears away
But the fight is much too constant these daysI want you to be my lover
And I don't want to face another night like this
And these lips won't touch another
Not as long as there's a longing for your kissPray for me before I break
These chains of sanity that kjeep me at bay
Memories like cigarette stains
On porcelainI want you to be my lover
And I don't want to face another night like this
And these lips won't touch another
Not as long as there's a longing for your kissI'm standing still
But where do I go from here?
I'd rather run away
Than spend another day running out of tearsI want you to be my lover
And I don't want to face another night like this
And these lips won't touch another
Not as long as there's a longing for your kiss
