

Pray for Me

Love Equals Death

Standing still between these walls
Holding on to all that matters is now lost
I try to wipe these tears away
But the fight is much too constant these days I want you to be my lover
And I don't want to face another night like this
And these lips won't touch another
Not as long as there's a longing for your kiss Pray for me before I break
These chains of sanity that keep me at bay
Memories like cigarette stains
On porcelain I want you to be my lover
And I don't want to face another night like this
And these lips won't touch another
Not as long as there's a longing for your kiss I'm standing still
But where do I go from here?
I'd rather run away
Than spend another day running out of tears I want you to be my lover
And I don't want to face another night like this
And these lips won't touch another
Not as long as there's a longing for your kiss
