Rainman

Silky Johnson

Rainman, rainman
Rainman, rainman
C-c-call me, c-c-call me
Rainman, rainman
There's no need for me to lay out my clothes
When she's not around there's nowhere to go
Make no attempts getting up out of this bed
I'm wanna open my eyes but I just close the curtains instead
Her thunder storms shuts my lights off, ooh
I got no missed calls maybe by tomorrow
'Cause right now I just can't catch a break
Everyday it rains, when she ain't laying right here
I can feel the coolness in the air, I know my chances ain't fair
Everyday it rains, water reaches my window sill
Sound reaches my ear, go then it reappears
Everyday it rains, my heart starts drowning
My vision gets cloudy, the flood moves around me
Everyday it rains, no sign of the light
As the time goes by, forty days and forty nights
Just when I thought I've gotten rid of you

I turn my face to your pillow that's soaked in your perfume
The water's raging, no life vest and I can't swim through, through, no
My heart, my mind and my soul, it's lost somewhere in this deep blue
Her thunder storms shuts my lights off, ooh
I got no missed calls, maybe by tomorrow
Everyday it rains, when she ain't laying right here
I feel the coolness in the air, I know my chances ain't fair
Everyday it rains, water reaches my window sill
Sound reaches my ear, go then it reappears
Everyday it rains, my heart starts drowning
My vision gets cloudy, the flood moves around me
Everyday it rains, no sign of the light
As the time goes by, forty days and forty nights
Baby, cut my lights back on
Take me I'm yours, baby
Cut my lights back on
Release me, release me from the sea of love

Oh, oh, oh baby, rainman, rainman, rainman
