

From a Train

Roddy Frame

Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

I knew, when I set eyes upon
You blinking, thinking in the dawn
That our star, on the rise
Would flare and fall, take a dive
Not something you would wish upon
I count the days and reconcile and sift the blame
And wonder if it's all worthwhile, this waiting game
Ready, shoot .. aim!
Then a minute mute, for what became
Of all the hours we felt the same
What a crime, what a scam, right on time, here I am
Just as you wake with a start from your dreams
And everything great comes apart at the seams
Disallowed and denied
Curse the clouds, damn the sky
Just when we thought it would fly
But some days, it's so beautiful
You feel joy and cry
I wish you love out on the road, I hope and pray
For stars above and friends below to light your way
Play your part, with all your style
And all your heart and all your guile
You couldn't fake it anyway
Like the trees, by the track
You see time stretching back
The sowing and growing and coming alive
The seasons and reasons, the land as it lies
But from a train, here's the view
Love is pain, rushing through
Just when you thought you'd arrived
