

Your Mirror

Simply Red

I've got to stand up for myself
This society don't care about no body else
I got to be strong
Even if I know that this feeling is wrong
I got to not care
Even if I know that this world was meant to share Wait a minute, this is wrong
Even the birds still sing their faithful song
And your beauty lies within you
Look in the mirror, baby
Look in the mirror, baby What you gonna do when your friends have gone away
And deserted you?
You'll have to be strong
Twenty-four hours can seem so long
You're taught to not care
And then not realize this world is meant to share Wait a minute, it's wrong
Even the birds still sing their faithful song
And your beauty lies within you
Look in the mirror, baby
Look in the mirror, baby We got to stand up for ourselves
Even if the leader so cold wants to glory himself
We've got to be strong
Even if our reasons seem wrong
We've got to not care
Even if the world that we know may not even be here Hold it, it's wrong
Even the birds still sing their faithful song
And your beauty lies within you
Look in the mirror, baby
Look in the mirror, baby Ooh, look in the mirror, baby
Ooh, look in the mirror, baby
Oh, alright, look in the mirror, baby

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>