Here I Go

Sam Ock

Here I go, far away I'll keep running in this race from my sin & from my shame I'm renewed, I'm not the same and i won't, won't look back
'cause Your grace keeps me on track my song will never cease for in You I am free!Ever before? yea, I need it more than that my lifestyle's a backpack, tattered and black it's wack... I mean it's like I'm hiding all the ugly bits only showing new kicks, they ain't even the half of it I'm mastering the art of plastering with white wash the pastor tells me that it's legalism and i'm lost you're right... I'm circling around the sin and shame it's hard to see the white with a canvas full of stains but the rain already came, the gavel already fell the savior of the world took it all on himself to show me that my struggle's already won the gun was unloaded on the perfect one, the son of man I know in my weakness or fickle heart everyday I'm given a new life, a new start 'cause i know my inheritance isn't from here so watch me run to the future, without fear!Here I go, far away I'll keep running in this race
from my sin & from my shame
I'm renewed, I'm not the same
and i won't, won't look back
'cause Your grace keeps me on track
my song will never cease for in You I am free!Every time it feels the same to me You tell me I'm loved, You tell me i'm free (but i do not feel it) and i know the crutch is my own helpless state of my own refusal to take Your grace I'll keep no confidence in what i do I've known that you know me right through and through and i will now abandon my own throne to run to the light, won't you watch me go
