

The Fool

Ben Sures

A sort of place you don't often find
A quiet room to go out of your mind
Will you excuse me whilst I confide
I've found a place where I can hide
    Lights out by nine as a rule
    One grey blanket and a stool
Angels fear to tread where stands the fool
But the air is warm, and the walls are cool
    So I'm kept away, so here I'll stay
    Even the judges kneel and pray
I am the winner in any event, SNAP!
Who was the man who said society's bent?
So I'm locked away in my padded cocoon
    A square of hell where nightmares bloom
    Armageddon couldn't come too soon
But if it only meant that I could leave this room
    Here stands the Fool
