Elder Misanthropy

The Black Dahlia Murder

Wisdom infinite, held tightly in my grasp

My sword one thousand battles strong

Ageless I remain, beyond the reach of death

Indebted by my soull have witnessed the burning of your faith

The tribulations, the driving of the stake

So slowly this immortal coil unwinds

Until the end, the end of fucking timeBlood of the ancient one is burning through my veins

The blood of God's man's never known

I am the one who cannot die, I am the the killer for all time

Seeds of infinite hate I've sownI walk the earth enshrouded in its darkness

Eclipsing, I claim the flesh of man

Ageless I remain with vengeance on my breath

Revolted by the meekI have witnessed the burning of your faith

The tribulations, the driving of the stake

So slowly this immortal coil unwinds

This crumbing world has become mineSee the creation of this world

See it all reduced to ash

In the blink of a sunken eye

I see one hundred winters passMy blessing, my curse

Perpetually I'm damned to earth

Of a soul I am bereft

Forever dying to be deadCome onSlipping through centuries untouched by human love

Void of the simple pleasures that human life provides

Forever bound, I lie in wait, undying and insaneSee the creation of this world

See it all reduced to ash

In the blink of a sunken eye

I see one hundred winters passMy blessing, my curse

Perpetually I'm damned to earth

Of a soul I am bereft

Forever dying to be deadDead
