

Fall

Alan Doyle

Why do I keep running through these paces
I close my eyes and see how the story goes
Little lies that Friday night erases
Dawn is a dagger that finds me alone Tell me why I keep stumbling through these places
Why can't I just leave well enough alone
All the while I search through strangers faces
Looking for something I might call my own I want a love that can lift me above and up
Onto the edge of it all
I long so much for the tumbling rush of it
I wanna know
Know what it feels like to
Fall
What if I might be too afraid to face it
And at closing time I let you slip away
Oh let me try, give me courage, give me graces
To look into your eyes and somehow to say I want a love that can lift me above and up
Onto the edge of it all
I long so much for the tumbling rush of it
I wanna know
Know what it feels like to...
I want a love that can lift me above and up
Onto the edge of it all
I long so much for the tumbling rush of it
I wanna know
Know what it feels like to
Fall from the face of it
Far from the safety net
I want a love, I don't care if it's dangerous
I know my stranger is out there and waiting and Thinking the same thing
And singing the same refrain I want a love that can lift me above and up
Onto the edge of it all
I long so much for the tumbling rush of it
I wanna know, I wanna know
I want a love that can lift me above and up
Onto the edge of it all
I long so much for the tumbling rush of it
I wanna know
Know what it feels like to

Fall
Know what it feels like to
Fall
