

Try

The Sweetest Condition

I've let them down again dropped everything and ran;
a hundred miles from home,
I see a face I know. From the crowd, he smiles, but I just turn away.
Why give a broken girl a chance on her dying day? You know you're beautiful, beautiful to me.
I can't help myself
from trying. You know you're beautiful,
beautiful to me.
I can't help myself
from trying. How can I forgive?
On my knees again.
I'm going out alone,
the same way I came in. Then he takes my hand, pulls the nails away.
Somehow from beneath the smoke will rise another day! You know you're beautiful, beautiful to me.
I can't help myself
from trying. You know you're beautiful,
beautiful to me.
I can't help myself
from trying.
