Since You Came

Malina

"Today" is such a deceptive word For I spent all my days grieving loud
I sang all my pain
so distressingly
Just to hush up any imploring shout
I couldn't speak
'cause the words I knew Like rotten mushrooms dissolved You came out of that burring host of sounds Brought me back solid consonants and vowelsAnd now my skin is so close-fitting Keeps the line with all the rest, since you came in
I used to dispel among the things that people wanted me to doI thought we got too familiar To be lovers that cherish the flame
All that we need is attention
And I know I'll always give you the same'Cause now my skin is so close-fitting Blending with reality,
since you came in Nothing ever moved me like your patience
While you taught me how to choose
