

Death By Fire

Land of Talk

Giving up a life worth leading kills us all
No surprise, the coldest eyes that took all
Giving up a life worth leading tears us down
The longest time, the longest line ever found

Lived your life in sacrifice is what you did
And I don't think a rose or raise a toast seems to fit
I still get scared of fate, and interstates and death by fire
It's just the longest time, the longest line of heart's desire

Didn't I tell you there was no such thing as a bad, bad day?
Oh baby, even if there was i wouldn't believe it anyway

One poison, two poison, three boys and it's not known for sure
It's just the coldest eyes and no surprise and that's not pure
I still get scared of fate and interstates and death by fire
It's just the longest time, the longest line of heart's desire

Didn't I tell you there was no such thing as a bad, bad day?
Oh baby, even if there was I wouldn't believe it anyway

Lyrics powered by lyrics.tancode.com written by Powell, Elizabeth

Lyrics Â© Kobalt Music Publishing Ltd.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>