

City Stories

Jennifer Leonhardt

as i was leaving the city a boy put out his small brown hand to me
"can ya give me five?" he high-fived me and the park exploded, the park exploded with the light up on a high black park horse a girl is talking on a cell phone her gait is steady and she flashes me a high voltage smile and the street ah and the street exploded with the light chorus

and you can f*ck yourself you can f*ck up yourself you can seriously f*ck up yourself but there's no more cages there's no more cages there's no more cages to get in up on the corner at columbus there's a vendor there with hot dogs his cheek is pock-marked and his left eye can't see me but the corner exploded, the corner exploded with the light

and you can f*ck yourself you can f*ck up yourself you can certainly f*ck up yourself but theres no more changes theres no more changes theres no more changes to run from
