Runaway

Marc Terenzi

She stands alone again at night
The darkness calling her name
The light's on but there's nothing inside
She waits outside for someone to blame

She falls down on her knees
And she cries

She doesn't wanna be alone again
And the streets keep calling her name
She only has to reach out and then
She could write the rules of the game
If she could only stop the hands of time
She could change her whole damn life
She would find a paradise
To runaway

She fells a breeze and opens her eyes
She wakes up in a white bed
By the beach there's a change in the tides
Love gave her life instead

She looks up to the sky
She knows why
She doesn't wanna be alone again
And the streets keep calling her name
She only has to reach out and then
She could write the rules of the game
If she could only stop the hands of time
She could change her whole damn life
She would find a paradise
To runaway

They always told her
That this was all she could be
She once was blind
But then life taught her
How to see
She had to believe

She doesn't wanna be alone again
And the streets keep calling her name
She only has to reach out and then
She could write the rules of the game
If she could only stop the hands of time
She could change her whole damn life
She would find a paradise
To runaway

Lyrics powered by lyrics.tancode.com written by SKILL, MIKE/PALAMARCHUK, WALTER/CANLER, GEORGE S
Lyrics Â© EMI Music Publishing

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/