

Trust and Betrayal

Evergrey

Some time has past, the winter is here
Dark memories haunt me, my visions is not clear
But my focus is crystal 'cause my wounds are bleeding still You hurt me forever, could I ever have thought that you would?
The only two that I trusted, why the hell should I forgive?
You just left me to winter and goddamn this loneliness
My sadness, you'll see this sorrow ends in victory
My trust, your betrayal, I stab away my sorrow
It all ends here, my sight are clear, new day begins tomorrow
A brighter season is here, the sun chases away the cold
Hasn't got the strength to scatter the clouds inside of me
Have they been building forever? And now to thick to cut through What did I do to deserve this punishment
And why am I the only one who's forsaken?
May you rest and sleep eternal but this empty soul is mine
All my tears, all this sorrow ended in defeat
My trust, your betrayal, I stab away my sorrows
It all ends here, my sight are clear, new day begins tomorrow
We are gathered here together to decide over the hearing
Of a most evil and an unpleasant crime
Perpetrated by an evil and unpleasant mind
Someone who would even kill his best friend
For reasons of personal greed and ambition
The defendant is accused of cold-bloodedly parting
The murder of his best friend
