Words, Hands, Hearts

Yellowcard

The whole world was sleeping
And I was there
You could just sense
This feeling in the airLike no one's words were good enough
To define what we feared
And no one's words were strong enough
To fix what happened hereLead on to save me
Or lead us all there
Find me some answers
One nation, bewareCan't tell the difference
Between myth and man
Or what's necessary
Or where I should standThe whole world is different now
Men have died
They can just sense this feeling
In our eyesLike no one's hands are big enough
To hold onto this fear
And no one's hands are strong enough
To fix what happened hereLead on to save me
Or lead us all there
Find me some answers
One nation, bewareCan't tell the difference
Between myth and man
Or what's necessary
Or where I should standSo do we do now?
Raise our voices loud
We're searching for something
That cannot be foundHere, open mouths
I see open hands
They're blinded and silent
I can't understandThe whole word is watching
With one blank stare
I can just sense this feeling
Of ill-repairLike no one's heart is full enough
To keep away this fear
And no one's heart is strong enough
To fix what happened hereLead on to save me
Or lead us all there
Find me some answers

It's time that you sharedCan't tell the difference
Between myth and man
Or what's necessary
Or where I should standSo do we tell now?
Raise our voices loud
We're searching for something
That cannot be foundI hear open mouths
And I see open hands
Like the blinded and silent
I can't understand
