Please Tell Me So

Of Montreal

I have lost, I don't remember what I saw in you
Your charms have become less charming
Your sweetness decreases everyday+
My dear darling, I've forgotten what I saw in you
Now I'm lost, I don't know a gentle way to say
That our life together is over
And it's best that you find someone new
Because my darling, I've forgotten what I saw in you
I seem to recall some vague memory of feeling happy
When we were young and in love
But that was a long time ago

Now I'm lost, never in a million years what I have dreamt
That about you I'd become indifferent
But sweetheart, incredibly it's true
That your cutie pie has forgotten what he saw in you
Please don't think that I'm being impulsive or careless
Or that I'm not miserable too
But I just can't continue this lie, I'm lost
I wish this had a happy ending
I wish there was something I could do
But, my darling, I've forgotten what I saw in you
I've forgotten what I saw in you
