

Nowhere Is My Home

O. Martin

Nowhere is my home
Oh, I can sleep anywhere tonight
I feel no connection to the places I've been
They all just seem to be, distant memories I'm no closer to heaven
Not further from hell
But maybe it's the way it should be I could live out of a suitcase
With a ticket or a ride
And meeting sweethearts in every city
And then head home to my wife Cause I feel no connection,
To the people I've met
I'm no closer to heaven
No further from hell So when am I supposed to find my cornerstone
The one who keeps me tame
The one who keeps me sane through all
So when am I supposed to find my cornerstone
Or the one that keeps me sane
Or the one that keeps me chained to it all Cause nowhere is my home
Except from this girl that I once knew
She gave me a name tag, and she gave me her soul
Now the only thing I fear is growing old I'm not closer to heaven
Not further from hell
Maybe it's the way it should be
