

Walter Westinghouse

The Residents

Walter Westinghouse went to town
He found a friend today
His friend was peeling ceiling wax as
He heard Walter say Love me tender, love me sweet
Love me like I love my feet
Sit me down with Ezra Pound
But don't forget to eat Or cause a country boy to cook
A carrot or a cake
But don't forget the feelings
Of a friend are hard to fake He lives a life of April leaves
Respondent to the thought that Often things you caught or bought
Were not the ones you sought Now his December is a sender
Singing songs he knows
But all the words are cheese and please
And boy, I hope it snows He buys the bacon and the achin'
In his heart is due
To overcoats and Quaker Oats
And if his wife should sue Wanda, Wanda where you went and Tell me what'd you take?
I took the tongue of Philip Jung
And left it in the lake But my dear I think I fear
That you had lost your way
'Cause scrambled eggs, 'cause scrambled eggs
Were all he'd let me bake He said, "Your trust is like a crust
Too brittle and too thin"
I said, You're full of nigger nuts
And look like Rin Tin Tin Is common ground not ever found
But flees from dad to son
Or is it just believing that the Evening steals the sun? I said, Your snoot is full of poot
And should be in a shoe
And then I said your stupid bed
Is better off than you Eat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hell
Huh, what's that, dear? Huh? Eat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hell Eat exuding oinks upon

And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hellYes, eat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hellEat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hellEat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hellEat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hellEat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hellEat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hellEat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hellEat exuding oinks upon
And bleed decrepit broken bones
At caustic spells of hellAnd he sees the threads of worn out treads
And calls his color true and calls his color true
And calls his color true and calls his color true
And calls his color true and calls his color true
And calls his color true and calls his color true
